CIMMYT International Wheat Breeding program has mandate to improve wheat productivity in developing countries through the development of superior yielding, disease resistant and climate resilient germplasm with end-use quality in partnership with National programs. The seminar will cover how breeding is organized, integrating the genomics and phenomics, to continue delivering genetic gains.