Global Learning in Agriculture: Connecting Global Issues to Local Solutions

Agricultural sciences contribute solutions to some of the world’s most pressing issues including food security, climate change, livelihoods and many more. How can we demonstrate this significance to our students, and equip them with the knowledge and skills needed to be effective agents of change?